Bad Blood is a Canadian crime drama television series that first premiered on September 21, 2017. The show is inspired by the real-life story of the Rizzuto crime family, which was a powerful criminal organization in Montreal, Canada.

The series follows the story of Vito Rizzuto (Anthony LaPaglia), the head of the Rizzuto crime family. After serving time in a U.S. prison for drug trafficking, Vito returns to Montreal and attempts to regain control of his organization, which has been weakened by infighting and internal struggles.

As Vito tries to re-establish his power, he faces opposition from various rival factions, including the Cotroni crime family, the Calabrian 'Ndrangheta, and a group of bikers known as the West End Gang.

Throughout the series, viewers are introduced to various characters who are either allies or enemies of Vito. These include his son Nico (Brett Donahue), his right-hand man Declan Gardiner (Kim Coates), and his longtime rival, the aging boss of the Cotroni family, Giuseppe "Joe" Bonanno (Paul Sorvino).
